RESEARCH PROFILE AND PROJECT TOPICS

The mission of our division is to bridge the gap between evidence and policy/practice in area of cancer prevention. Our work is guided by implementation science and health policy theories/frameworks or models and have a strong focus on health equity. We utilize both qualitative and quantitative methodologies, including participatory approaches (e.g. citizen science), and geospatial analysis.

Potential project topics include the following. We are also very open to your ideas that fit within our mission:

- Co-design and evaluation of interventions to increase participation in cancer prevention services (e.g. primary – HPV vaccination; secondary: cancer screening, etc), with a focus on underserved communities
- Evaluation of real world implementation of cancer prevention policies
